FARMHOUSE, GLOUCESTERSHIRE

This traditional farmhouse is located in rural Gloucestershire, on the edge of the Cotswolds. It was designed and built in a traditional way using local limestone for the walls and ashlar stone window frames. The front elevation was hand-dressed, with a chiselled finish.

The front and side entrances have ashlar stone surrounds, with scrolled corbels and a stone canopy.

Glazed french doors at the back of the house open onto a sandstone paved terrace, with views over the river to the countryside.

- Stone specified: Cotswold Buff Sawn on Bed with Ashlar stone dressings
- Exterior: Duna sawn paving
- Sector: Private residential
